Dear Bob,

Your nice long letter of 29 June was delayed in being forwarded to me here because it got mislaid at my home in Washington and I didn't get it until yesterday afternoon. I therefore hasten to acknowledge its receipt and to thank you very much for keeping me informed.

If you are uneasy about Bob's meetings with Barlow, so am I, and I am going to try to learn what they are about. However, maybe our misgivings are unwarranted - the visits may be purely social.

Well, now you must surely be having a nice quiet restful holiday where you are as it must be a small habitat. I have never even heard of it! Congratulations on Yanna's reaching and celebrating his 10th birthday. I hope you enjoyed the Midsummer party and drank many skools!

We are having a very nice time here. I finished my lecturing yesterday afternoon. There was much applause, maybe because the thing came at last to an end (I talked for 2 hours 15 minutes without stopping!) and maybe it was because the audience enjoyed listening to

Vertical text on the left margin, possibly bleed-through or a separate note, including phrases like "I am going to try to learn what they are about" and "I hope you enjoyed the Midsummer party".
