Dear Mr. Friedman,

The article is in the mail to London this afternoon. Kay Noxtine will see that it ~~gxxx~~ fastest possible handling to the U.S. As I described in my letter of long ago, I am sending it to Dr. Leibler, and it should be in his hands in a week or so.

I'm sorry about the delay, since the article was actually written in mid January, but when Kay Noxtine told me you had gone to Yucutan, I thought I would do some reading and check as many references as possible. This took rather more time than I had thought it would. Also, the heavens crashed on my head at work, and I've been fairly busy with the project I was sent over here on.

The article was a challenging job. I feel better about it, having checked the references, in fact, the facts forced me to change the article in a few places.

Hope you like it.

Sincerely,

(Joe Meyer)

P.S. I was pleased to learn recently that a novel I wrote last spring has just been sold to an SF magazine. However, it will complicate my income tax.
